At the pharmacy:

- Concurrent drug utilization reviews identifying the most pertinent clinical patient safety or utilization concerns
- First-time users limited to a seven-day supply of short-acting opioids
- Prior authorization on first fill of a long-acting opioid to encourage a safe start
- Pharmacy intervention triggered when patient dosage across all opioids reaches certain level

Our Lasting Legacy of Education

Express Scripts has a long history of working to make the use of prescription medications safer, and our Advanced Opioid Management solution is just one of the products of our efforts.

We support national and state intervention. However, we know that government regulations and initiatives are only one part of the solution. The answers lie in education, coordination and action. Our efforts are receiving national attention, and you can join us in creating change. Preview our leadership library below, and start learning about how you can directly contribute to solving the opioid crisis.

Helping doctors, protecting patients

Our Advanced Opioid Management is more than just utilization management: it's also about patient education and care, proper disposal of unused medication, and using data to enable action.

Why "Abuse Deterrent" is a misnomer

Instead of mandating first-line coverage for ADF opioids, we must remain committed to reducing opioid misuse through a comprehensive, well-coordinated solution that includes law enforcement, providers, plan sponsors and patients.

Data helps docs prescribe opioids safely

Successfully addressing safe opioid use while ensuring access to these medications for patients in pain requires a comprehensive approach that includes patients, pharmacies, and — critically important — physician education and outreach.
